Proof that NA2 does reach targets:

“The impressive momentum that has been generated through these grid projects has in turn attracted the attention of several biochemical, pharmaceutical and molecular biology laboratories. Following the press release of the WISDOM data challenge we have been contacted by several groups working on the molecular physiology of pathogens.”

Martin Hofmann, SCAI, Grid Computing and the Combat against Neglected Diseases

Media relations resulting in coverage in wide-range of publications, as well as several TV and Radio interviews, including:

- Lack of NA2 representation in all key geographic areas limits reach
- We enlisted help in some key areas (e.g. France) and manage as much as possible centrally
- Wide NA2 representation essential for dissemination to be truly successful

- Final Dissemination and Usage Report (the last NA2 deliverable) to be completed in December
- Measuring success (metrics) until end of project
- Continual update of public and local websites (especially to make Applications more visible)
- Continue to issue news releases about key items (gLite, User Forum event, etc.)
- Target key events with publicity material and presentations
- EGEE Newsletter (January and March 2005)
